Monroe Saulsbury, Byron McHenry and Ed. Geers, the celebrated driver, will arrive in the city this evening on No. 3 with thirty-four famous trotters and pacers, among the last being Flying Jib, Alix, R. J., and John R. Gentry. They will rest up here for a few days, and then continue on to California.

The Re-instatement Cases.

In the matter of the application of a grade of engineers and firemen of the western division of the Atlantic & Pacific, who were discharged during the strike by the general officers of the road, the receivers applied to Judge Hawkins' court in Arizona for an order reinstating them in their former positions, and the matter was referred to Judge Warren, of this city, as general master in the foreclosure suit of the Mercantile Trust company, in which the receivers were appointed. The grounds upon which they ask re-instatement are substantially that they were discharging their duties and took no part in the strike, and as to some of them that they were not members of the American Railway Union, and others, although members of that order, they did not obey the order to strike but were ready and willing to perform their duties, and that the receivers in discharging them were guilty of an abuse of their discretionary powers. An interesting question in the case is how far a court, which has appointed receivers of property, will supervise their action in the performance of their duties, and the court itself directly intervenes in the management of the property in their hands, and Judge Hawkins' final action will be awaited with interest.

Misses McCull and Miss Maud Simpson, two pleasant young ladies of the city, have received invitations to attend the grand masquerade ball under the auspices of the Second cavalry band at Fort Wingate, on New Year's eve, and last evening they concluded to attend. There will be others from the city in attendance. The Citizens has received an invitation, and if no member of the paper's staff can attend Misses McCull and Simpson have agreed to furnish a description of the ball for publication.

FLYING BULLETS!

Ranchos de Atrisco Furnishes a Shooting Affray.

Manuel Armijo Receives a Bullet in his Head.

While Ambrosio, his Brother, Gets a Ball in his Arm.

YSIDRO SANDOVAL DID THE WORK

The village of Ranchos de Atrisco, just across the river, was the scene of quite a bloody and lively shooting scrap early this morning, in which it is thought that Manuel Armijo is fatally shot.

When the news reached the city this morning, a representative of the Times arrived this afternoon to learn the details of the shooting, and the doctor states that brain tissue has been removed from the head.
